HAINES PLANS TO ASK RAISE FOR CARRIERS

Rural Mail Men Endorse Haines' Stand On Adjustment Of Pay.

TRI-COUNTY UNIT ASSEMBLES HERE

The position of Congressman Harry L. Haines on the rural mail carriers' salary readjustment bill, pending before congress, was endorsed by more than 100 rural carriers of the York, Adams, and Franklin county rural carriers' association at a meeting at the Knights of Columbus hall, center square, Saturday evening.

Congressman Haines pointed out that passage of the salary readjustment measure is almost inevitable, but added that he plans to substitute an amendment to increase the equipment maintenance allowance from four cents to six cents a mile.

Congressman Haines said Postmaster General James Farley is not responsible for the salary-slashing measure, by which the basic pay of rural carriers would be reduced from $2,100 a year for a 24-mile route to $1,800 for a minimum 30-mile route.

$11,000,000 Slash

The representative of the Adams-York-Franklin district said Postmaster General Farley was told to cut $11,000,000 from the rural carrier service and that he is only carrying out the orders of his superiors.

Congressman Haines said many members of congress are attempting to disrupt the rural carrier service by having the routes given out by competitive bidding. "But under the contract system of delivering mail," Congressman Haines in his address asserted, "rural residents could not expect the same conscientious service which you men have given for so many years."

Furlough Minus Pay

The speaker said the alternative to the salary readjustment measure would be the consolidation of rural routes by which 9,500 rural carriers througout the country would lose their positions or the furloughing of the present carriers without pay, three days a week.

A number of the rural carriers pointed out that the reduction in their basic pay would be satisfactory if the maintenance equipment allowance were raised. Several of the carriers said it costs them six cents and upward a mile to operate their cars. All of the carriers were agreed that costs of operating their machines have increased considerably during the past year.

Congressman Haines, who is a member of the postoffice and post roads' committee in the lower branch of congress, said Congressman James M. Mead, of New York, chairman of the postoffice and post roads' committee, and many other members of congress are in sympathy with the rural carriers and "will do everything in their power" in their behalf.

Congressman Haines said hearings on the salary readjustment bill will begin Tuesday and at that time he will offer as an amend-

MEET

TOM BEVINS—a two-fisted born fighter, engineer and director of far-flung enterprises, facing the greatest struggle of his career, could not trust business associates, relatives or friends and turned instead to the girl who once was his secretary.

JUDITH LANE — the "perfect stenographer" who inherited Bevins' fortune with secret instructions to carry out a project which was to be his monument to posterity and was thereby plunged into a bitter struggle with relatives, friends and even her husband.

NORMAN DALE—Judith's husband, legal counsel to Tom Bevins' enemies, found himself estranged from his wife, trying to break the will he knew Judith would defend at all costs: who learned that woman's love for a man might not be so strong as her loyalty to an ideal.

You'll meet these characters in Jeanne Bowman's new serial JUDITH LANE, a stirring story of a modern girl who couldn't be bluffed.

Starts today in The Gettysburg Times.

One of Two C.C.C. Units Here May Be Transferred To Pacific Coast Forest

One Unit May Return To Camp in West Abandoned Early Last Fall.

Although official announcement has not been made as yet it is expected that one of Gettysburg's civilian conservation corps forest camps will be moved west early this spring.

One camp is expected to be retained here at least for another year and the second unit is expected to be transferred to one of the national parks on the Pacific coast.

The first contingent of forest workers came here last June and established the first C. C. C. camp in Pitzer's woods, on the battlefield. It was a summer outfit and the forest workers and officers lived in tents.

Early in the fall it was announced that the conservation corps would be continued for another six months and the camp wasc immediately made ready for a winter stay. Within four weeks the entire unit had been transferred from tents to wooden barracks. Later mess halls, recreation halls, officers' quarters, hospitals, headquarters and non-commissioned officers' quarters were constructed.

Get Second Camp

A request was made for a second camp to be established here because of the extensive program outlined for the C. C. C. on the battlefield.

The second camp was established last October in McMillan's woods. It was transferred from the state of Washington to Gettysburg and set up in tents. Later these were replaced by winter barracks and the two units increased to full strength of 200 enrollees and an officer personnel of ten or fifteen.

Both outfits have been at work on the battlefield through the winter months and James R. McConaghie announced that he has sufficient work on the battlefield to keep the 400 men busy for at least another year.

However, it is believed that one of the units will be moved to the Pacific coast and that it is likely it will be established on one of the camp sites established last spring but abandoned when cold weather set in.

May Move Camp No. 2

Both camp sites here are said to be among the finest laid-out C. C. C. camps in the Third Corps Area.

It is not known which camp will

R. E. SHRIVER IS JAILED ON TWO CHARGES

Roadstand Proprietor Accused of Aggravated Assault and Battery.

R. E. Shriver, 35, proprietor of a roadstand on the Lincoln highway, one mile east of Gettysburg, was arrested late Saturday night on charges of failing to stop and render assistance after an accident and aggravated assault and battery, and was committed to the Adams county jail in default of $1,000 bail.

The charges against Shriver were laid before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer by James Hoffman, West Middle street. The warrant was served by Trooper G. V. Stedman, of the local sub-station of the state police.

According to reporrts, Shriver and Hoffman had an altercation on South Franklin street, Saturday evening, in the course of which Shriver is alleged to have struck Hoffman with his fist.

Run Down by Car

Shriver is then said to have entered his automobile and started to drive away. In some unexplained manner, Shriver's car struck Hoffman, knocking him down. The car then ran over Hoffman's left arm, according to police.

Hoffman was taken to the Warner hospital where an X-ray examination failed to reveal any broken bones. Later he lodged the information against Shriver.

Shriver is under $300 bail on a charge of stealing a police dog, owned by Pete Lempeteseis, of Gettysburg, from the home of H. E. Gleim, West Middle street. The dog was recovered.

A hearing for Shriver on the latest charges will probably be held this afternoon or this evening.

Y.W. Campaign For Funds is Started Today

The annual campaign for funds for the Y. W. C. A. got under way this morning with four teams making a canvass in Gettysburg and teams in each community in the rural sections covering their respective territory.

The Y. W. is seeking a fund of $1,800 to carry on its work through the year. Mrs. Leroy Winebrenner is chairman of the finance committee and in charge of the campaign for funds.

This evening Dr. M. Hadwin Fischer will address the Rotary club and Professor Lloyd C. Keefauver, superintendent of schools, will address the Lions' club in the interest of the drive. Both speakers will explain the purposes for which the $1,800 is needed.

The various teams are expected to conclude their canvass before Saturday of this week.

The quota is for Y. W. activities throughout the county.

Tenement Owners Threaten to Put 67,000 Families into Streets

New York, March 5 (AP).—Owners of some 67,000 tenement houses in the five boroughs issued a threat Sunday to "walk out and abandon the properties," turning more than half a million families into the the street, if the city administration persists in enforcing its demand for immediate improvement of the buildings.

The threat was made in a statement by Joseph Goldsmith, president of the Council of Real Estate associations of Greater New York, who will confer with representatives of tenement owners and city officials today.

The proposed abandonment follows upon the action of Langdon Post, tenement house commissioner, in nullifying the moratorium on multiple dwellings. This moratorium allowed owners of tenements to operate buildings for the present without complying with building requirements.

"If Mr. Post insists upon immediate completion of alterations . . . ," the Goldsmith statement said, "the owners of the tenements will walk out and abandon the properties. This would mean 67,000 families out on the streets with no place to go. It is impossible for the mayor, or anybody else, to put through such a drastic order."

Goldsmith said the owners were financially unable at this time to make the alterations.

The only solution, he said, is for the state and federal government to make the necessary loans for remodeling.

"The loans can be applied as a first lien against the real estate," he said. "Such a program will go much further than the $25,000,000 slum-clearance project now in progress."

If Mayor LaGuardia persists in the demand of his commissioner, Goldsmith said the tenement owners "will dump the whole thing in his lap."

Bigler Firemen Re-elect Bucher

Harry C. Bucher was re-elected president of the Biglerville fire company at the annual election meeting last Thursday evening. He was elected over Earl E. Carey, treasurer of the company, who sought the presdency.

Other officers chosen include E. C. Roth, vice president; John Deardorff, secretary; Rowe Martin, assistant secretary; Charles Baker, treasurer, and Emory Funt, chief.

Chief Funt announced that he will make his appointments at the next meeting of the company.

REV. BRINDLE ATTACKS WAR, CITES CAUSES

Arendtsville Pastor Says Pacifists Are Real Peace-Seeking Group.

A slashing, bitter attack on war, its causes and effects was presented Sunday morning by the Rev. Ernest W. Brindle, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, Arendtsville.

The theme of the sermon was "The Law of the Harvest," and the text selected from Galatians 6:7, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth he shall also reap."

The Rev. Mr. Brindle told the story of a man, wife and their young son. The father had gone off to the world war and come back minus a leg and arm as well as being horribly disfigured. Recent war rumors cause a discussion between the father and the son, now a young man of twenty.

"Well, Dad, nobody wants war. Surely you will agree with that. With all that has been said in description of what the next war will be like, after we have seen how men like you have suffered and how women like mother have endured loneliness and sorrow, surely no one wants war."

"Do not be so sure about that, Jim. Do you know that many millionaires were made during the war? Have you forgotten the man who told me some years ago that he was not fool enough to buy Liberty bonds during the war; but that he bought them later when they were selling for eighty-six instead of one-hundred. Men who use war as a way to a fortune are not so eager for peace as you imagine.

"Pacifists were the ones who began to tell us that wars were fought for profits. Pacifists are not blind. They are the ones who have been urging that the manufacture of all armament be carried on by the government without profit to capitalism."

"Of course, Dad, I believe it would

Only Eight Unemployed Persons in Aspers and Bendersville District

Four civil works projects have been completed in the Bendersville and Aspers area, according to reports filed in the local CWA headquarters.

The social survey in Bendersville, under the supervision of H. W. Knouse, shows 125 families residing in 116 homes with a total population of 382. Of this number 85 own their own homes and 37 lease the dwellings in which they reside. There are 69 school children and 43 children of pre-school age. Sixty-three persons are employed part time and three are unemployed.

There are 52 families in Aspers, with a total population of 169. Twenty-four persons own their homes and 27 lease residences. There are 29 school children and 22 children of pre-school age. Thirty-four are are employed part time and three are unemployed.

Tillable Acres

In the rural sections of these two communities the survey revealed 67 families with a population of 258. Forty-four own their homes and 26 rent. Forty-one are employed part time and two are unemployed.

There are 1,579 tillable acres, 296 in meadows, 1,513 in orchards, 528 in woodland. There are 92 horses and mules and 145 head of cattle.

The four CWA projects gave employment to 80 persons and the cost of the work totaled $7,300. The projects included the grading and draining of public alleys along the borough's new school ground, painting of the interior and exterior of the school building.

An uncompleted project is the grading, draining and improvement of a new drive-way from the highway to the borough's new reservoir.

The borough map which has been made on tracing cloth by Russell L. Hamilton, draftsman, and Elwin W. Patterson, engineer, include all the buildings, streets, alleys, water and gas lines, electric lights and poles, telephone poles, fire plugs and the boundary line of the borough.

93-Year Old Native of County Wants to Shake Hands with Roosevelt

Mrs. Loretta Frey, of Frankford, Pa., who was born near Gettysburg, has one ambition in life. . . and that is to shake hands with President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Frey, a native of Adams county, later moved to Upton, Franklin county, and then to Frankford.

She shook hands with Abraham Lincoln—one of the few persons now living who can boast that honor. Though she votes the republican ticket, she considers Roosevelt a great man. Almost as great as Lincoln.

Mrs. Frey was 93 on Washington's Birthday, February 22. At her birthday party she entertained her three children, seven grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, besides a crowd of friends.

Her friends never forget her birthday. She received 121 greeting cards, a stack of letters and five birthday cakes.

Thrilling Moment At Gettysburg

Mrs. Frey considers the most thrilling event of her life shaking hands with Lincoln. Her doctor at Upton had a two-horse surrey and he took his wife and Mrs. Frey to Gettysburg to hear Lincoln's famous address, November 19, 1863.

It is still a vivid memory.

"My! such a crowd as there was that day," she said. "I never saw anything like it. And everyone was eager to see Lincoln. We got there very early and found a place toward the front within a few yards of the president.

He Was Sad, Spoke Softly

He seemed sad, Mrs. Frey said. The crowd was very still when he finished, she added, and did not applaud. She believes they were much moved.

Lincoln spoke neither fast nor slow and did not raise his voice or use many gestures, though such things were then considered a part of good oratory.

He looked exactly like his pictures, Mrs. Frey declared, only he had such a wonderful expression that it made him good-looking.

"He shook hands with everyone

TOWNSHIP SEEKS PERMISSION TO LEVY NEW TAX

Supervisors of Huntington township today petitioned the Adams county court for permission to levy an additional three-mill tax, and Judge Donald P. McPherson set March 26 at 11 o'clock as the time for a hearing on the petition.

In their petition, the supervisors set forth that in February they levied a seven-mill tax for general purposes and an adidtional tax of two mills for special purposes.

The board of supervisors comprises John C. Trimmer, William Asper and H. C. Spertzel.

Judge McPherson also directed that a process be issued for Rodney Poist, of McSherrystoyn, indicted at a recent term of court on a statutory charge.

A large amount of current business was transacted at the session which was held in the law library. This afternoon, arguments in several cases were being heard, and later four or five defendants were to be sentenced.

Executor's Wife Buys Property

Harry E. Koch, executor of the estate of John Koch, sold a property at 239 West Middle street, Saturday afternoon, at public auction, to Mrs. Harry E. Koch for $1,000. It is a lot 60 by 180 feet improved with a two-story dwelling and a stable. The house has been unoccupied since the death of Mrs. John Koch, mother of the executor, in December.

Mercury Hits 70 and First Straw is Out

With thermometers hovering around 70 degrees, the first straw hat of the season made its appearance in Gettysburg today.

The wearer was George F. Mitchell, center square restaurant proprietor, and none would gainsay that the temperature did not warrant the display of such a headpiece.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Henry Stewart, local weather recorder reported that his thermometer registered 70 degrees.

Coats were discarded and furnace fires were banked as the mercury climbed during the day.

Pussywillows began sending forth their buds and the first robin was reported.

Housewives enjoyed the first clear Monday washday in many weeks.

MAKES GOOD HIS BOAST

"Ha, ha, ha, and I did it with a wooden pistol." With that remark, John Dillinger, sworn "cop killer" and notorious badman, broke out of the jail at Crown Point, Ind., where he was being held for trial on a murder charge. A huge posse immediately started a search of midwestern states. Dillinger boasted he would break jail. (Associated Press Photos).

F. D. R. DEMANDS SHORTER HOURS TO HELP IDLE

Issues Challenge to Industrial Leaders To Stop Unemployment.

Washington, March 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt presented today to the assembled NRA code authorities a summons for further reduction of working hours as a means to spread employment.

"I give to industry today this challenge," he said to the industrial leaders gathered in Constitution hall, "It is the immediate task of industry to re-employ more people at purchasing wages and to do it now.

"Oonly thus can we continue recovery and restore the balance we seek. It is worth while keeping in the front of our heads the thought that the people in this country whose incomes are less than $2,000 a year buy more than two-thirds of all the goods sold here. It is logical that if the total amount that goes in wages to this group of human beings is steadily increased, merchants, employers and investors will in the long run get more income from the increased volume of sales."

People Made Choice

The president said that a year ago today (the day after inauguration day), the nation was "suffering the shrinking under economic pressure so intolerable that collapse was at hand. We had arrived at the day to make our choice. We made that choice. The American people responded to the call for ac-

Spanish Noblewoman Made Saint at Colorful Ceremony

Vatican City, March 5 (AP).—A Spanish noblewoman who once graced Paris court functions with self-torturing devices concealed beneath her clothing was made a saint Sunday by Pope Pius in ceremonies which brought thousands of ardent worshippers to St. Peter's basilica.

In court life the new saint was known as Viscountess of Jorbalan. She was known throughout most of her adult life as Mother Maria Misaela, founder of the Institute of Handmaidens of the Most Holy Sacrament.

Her self-punishment was imposed in several years of Parisian court life in the middle of the nineteenth century. Feeling in duty bound to obey her diplomat brother's wishes she attended balls, parties and receptions.

But she humiliated her flesh while attending these functions to express her religious devotion, and arose at 5 o'clock each morning to pray until her brother's family got up at a diplomat's hour. She spent most of her time in charity work.

Don Jaime, son of the former King Alfonso of Spain, with two Spanish cardinals, eight Spanish bishops and 3,000 Spanish pilgrims attended Sunday's ceremonies, adding their tribute to the cheers of thousands that crowded St. Peter's and the surrounding streets.

With the measured Latin command that blessed Maria Micaela Demaisieres "be inscribed in the catalogue of the saints and her memory celebrated in the universal church each year with pious devotion," Pope Pius finished his portion of the canonized ritual and a spontaneous burst of applause reverberated through the cathedral.

Swiss guards, high in a balcony over the main entrance, then sounded six silver trumpets, and choir and congregation lifted their voices in the "Te Deum." Outside the massive bells of St. Peter's gave deep-throated recognition to the new saint in a triumphant peal echoed from the towers of almost half a hundred Roman churches.

MAN ESCAPES DEATH AS CAR UPSETS, BURNS

Yorker Reported Forced from Highway in Dense Fog Early Sunday.

TWO MACHINES CRASH IN FOG

Russell E. Shiffer, 33, of York, escaped injury when the sedan-type automobile he was driving struck a concrete culvert, turned over, landed on its wheels and caught fire on the Lincoln highway, one mile east of McKnightstown, Sunday morning at 2:30 o'clock.

Shiffer, who was alone, was traveling east on the Lincoln highway. A dense fog lay over the countryside at the time.

As Shiffer was proceeding cautiously through the fog, a car, traveling west, forced the Yorker's machine from the highway, according to a local state motor patrolman who investigated.

Shiffer's car struck the concrete culvert, bounded back onto the highway, rolled over and landed on its wheels. Almost immediately, the sedan caught fire.

Escapes from Flames

Shiffer was able to get out of the car before the flames gained headway.

The machine which forced Shiffer's car from the highway did not stop, the motor patrolman said.

When the patrolman and a garageman reached the scene, Shiffer's car was almost destroyed by fire. When the flames subsided the wreckage was towed to Gettysburg.

Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

Cars Collide

In a dense fog, cars driven by C. M. Burns, Chambersburg R. 1, and Samuel Eller, Hagerstown, sideswiped on the Lincoln highway, four mile seast of Gettysburg, about 2:30 o'clock, Sunday morning. No one was injured.

Burns was traveling east on the highway, while Eller was proceeding west.

After minor repairs were made, made, both machines were able to proceed from the scene of the accident under their own power.

Damage to both cars was estimated at $40 by a local state motor patrolman who investigated.

Suffers Stroke While Listening To Sermon Sunday

While listening to a sermon on the radio, Sunday morning, Harry B. Martin, Baltimore street, suffered a heart attack. Mr. Martin, a clerk at the Gettysburg hardware store, Baltimore street, has been off duty for more than six weeks on account of illness. His condition today was reported somewhat improved.

J. Price Oyler is confined to his home on York street by illness.

Picking Your Spots

A Gettysburg man, who imbibed too freely of the spirit that once was illicit, selected an ideal setting for a place to "flop" Saturday night.

Captain Francis J. Moran and his staff of officers left their commodious lodge shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night to inspect M. P. No. 1. A bright fire burned in the stone fireplace. Dim lights cast a soft glow over the lounge. It was a perfect setting.

When Captain Moran and his staff returned they found the local resident, somewhat "under the influence," comfortably put on a huge davenport in front of the fireplace. The radio was emitting a soothing waltz melody. The lounge was warm, cozy and inviting.

The local inebriate had fallen asleep . . . his hat had fallen from his head . . . and his head was bobbing up and down . . . beyond control.

Camp officers, disgusted yet sympathetic, called state police who escorted the residenter to his home. Officers did not want the young man rambling around the battlefield avenues in the dense fog fearing he may get hurt.

"We enjoy company," said Captain Moran, "but we cannot entertain inebriates."

Execute Two Men For Cop's Death

Bellefonte, March 5 (AP)—Wallace Skawinski, of Colchester, Connecticut, and James Riggs, of Scranton, were executed today at Rockview penitentiary for slaying Lewis Roberts, Scranton lieutenant of detectives in a holdup.

Skawinski went to the chair with firm step, but Riggs had to be supported. Both were in their early twenties.

Neither had anything to say as the electrodes were clamped on. Riggs required two contacts; the first time in many executions that more than one has been given.

They were accompanied to the chair by the Rev. Francis McCreesh, Catholic chaplain. Both bodies have been claimed by relatives.

Young York County Lifer Developing into Artist; Sentenced in "Hex" Case

Philadelphia, March 5. — Four years ago last January 26, John Curry, not yet 16, entered the eastern penitentiary to begin a life term for murder.

He had been convicted with two York county men of the so-called "hex" murder of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, farmer, late in November, 1928.

Today the boy, who passed his twentieth birthday on February 21, shows signs of becomng a skilled artist, according to prison authorities and welfare workers. Great artists taken to visit him to see his work have said that he showed "great promise."

Work Exhibited

His work has been shown in Philadelphia exhibitions and he has been made a member of several artists' clubs.

Discovery of his talent was an accident. When he entered the Philadelphia institution he was placed in a cell with a man who had been "sent up" for fifteen to thirty years on a charge of burglary—Claud d'Aras, former student at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

D'Aras took an interest in the boy, whose case had aroused much legal interest due to his youth. They talked of art and d'Aras noted that the boy was greatly interested. Never had he had the opportunity to paint, and he thought he would like to.

He was a quiet, well-behaved boy, clean-cut and uncomplaining, and arrangements were made for him to try. He showed talent and d'Aras gave him lessons, taught him all he had learned at the Academy. The Pennsylvania Committee for Penal Affairs, through Leon Stern, its secretary, took an interest. Charles Edwin Fox, former district attorney, who had been interested in the legal side of the case, became interested in the boy's work and sent an art teacher to the prison.

In Navy at 13

Quietly and never discussing the crime which sent him to prison, he went from black and white drawing to color work and then to oils. He took up modeling, he painted portraits of his fellow prisoners, landscapes and seascapes.

The boy, large for his age, had run away from home and joined the navy at the age of 13. His true age had been revealed and he was promptly mustered out of the service, but not until he had reached the West Coast. He was sent home by way of Panama, and some of his paintings concern that country.

Working in the prison office as a clerk, the boy draws a salary of about 20 cents a day, which he uses to buy his paints and canvases.

Among the visitors that friends have brought to see Curry's works have been Robert Sussan, well-known portrait painter, and Samuel Yellin, winner of the Philadelphia Award for his artistic achievements in wrought iron. They have been very much interested in his work.

His paintings have been taken out of the prison to go in art exhibitions. Recently he sent one to the exhibition held for unemployed artists in the Crozer building. With this went a note saying that while he hoped the painting could be sold, he wanted the proceeds to go to unemployed painters.

VERDICT DAZES WOMAN DOCTOR

Mississippi Physician Plans To Go into Seclusion; Files Appeal.

Greenwood, Miss., March 5 —Described as "completely dazed" by the verdict of guilty returned against her in the death of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, her one-time admirer, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, Geeenwood child specialist, plans to go into seclusion pending a hearing on her motion for a new trial.

Flatly denying on the stand that she murdered Doctor Kennedy, who was to re-wed his divorced wife, the woman physician was reported Saturday night in a near state of collapse a few hours after listening to the jury's verdict and the sentence of life imprisonment pronounced by the court.

Free In $10,000 Bail

She was released in $10,000 bail to await the hearing on her plea for a new trial, tentatively set for June 2.

Members of the Dean family said she was feeling "a little better" and expressed less alarm over her condition. They said she hopes to leave for Sharon, Mississippi, in Madison county, to rest and regain her health on the plantation of her forefathers as soon at her strength would permit.

Her defense attorneys, Dick Denman, J. J. Breland and A. F. Gardner, declared they would leave no stone unturned to save Doctor Dean from entering the Mississippi penitentiary to serve the sentence imposed Saturday.

Nine Army Planes Destroyed by Fire

Leavenworth, Kan. March 5 (AP) —Fire of undetermined origin destroyed nine army airplanes, damaged four others and caused extensive damage to two hangars at the Fort Leavenworth airport Sunday.

The total loss was expected by army officiels to exceed $250,000.

Officers at the post were unable to fix the cause of the fire, but it was believed a 500-gallon gasoline drum stored in Hangar No. 2 exploded and started the conflagration.

None of the planes were being used in the army's air mail service.

BUTLER VISITS HAINES' TOWN

Reaction to General's Speech May Have Bearing on Congressional Situation.

Bearing out reports that Congressman Harry L. Haines, of the Adams-Franklin-York district, will have little or no opposition for the democratic nomination in the primary election, comes announcement as a candidate from Clayton R. Strickhouser, a former democratic party chairman in York county and a former recorder of deeds there. His announcement is conditional that Mr. Haines is not a candidate.

For Haines 100 Per Cent

"If Congressman Harry L. Haines decides not to run for the office again, I am a candidate and my friends can so consider me," he declares, adding:

"Congressman Haines has made a very satisfactory representative for this district and if he is a candidate he should not be given opposition. If he does not come forward as a candidate, then I consider that I am logically in line for the nomination for these reasons: Four years ago I was a candidate in a three-cornered contest. My opponents were Harry L. Haines and Andrew J. Hershey. Mr. Haines won the nomination. I finished a strong second with 1,100 more votes than Mr. Hershey polled. Since that primary, Mr. Hershey has died. Now if Mr. Haines does not run I think that leaves me as the logical candidate."

Butler At Red Lion

York county republicans are expecting General Smedley Butler to fire some shots into the democratic camp when he appears in Red Lion, Congressman Haines' home town, for a speech before war veterans of the three counties next Friday evening.

The republicans hope to enlist the veterans vote on the ground that Congressman Haines has consistently "supported the Roosevelt program which opposed for purposes of economy the movement to bring the bonus bill before the house in Washington."

Zeigler New Possibility

Republicans seem to be centering their influence behind the York county solicitor, Robert Laird, of Hanover, for the republican congressional nomination.

Anti-Guffey-VanDyke elements in York county, are talking of Major Paul Zeigler, a York councilman, as a possible democratic opponent of Haines in the primary, using the veterans as possible supporters of either or both Laird and Zeigler.

The reaction to Butler's visit to Red Lion will be watched with keen interest by those interested in things political in both parties.

2 Are Fined $50 Each for Sawing Tree

When George Washington chopped down the cherry tree, a reprimand by his father was his only punishment, but Irvin H. Hostetter, Jr., Union township, and Woodrow Chronister, Washington township, York county, discovered that cutting down a maple tree is something else.

Charged with malicious mischief in sawing down a tree in front of the home of C. W. Beard, Third street, Hanover, on November 1, 1933, Hostetter and Chronister were ordered to pay fines of $50 each and costs when arraigned before Justice of the Peace I. R. Witmer, Hanover, Saturday eening.

The piar posted bond to pay the fines and costs within ten days.

Hostetter was arrested shortly after the alleged offense, while Chronister was not apprehended until last Friday evening.

Missing French Flyer is Safe; Forced Down By Fog

Copenhagen, March 5 (AP)— Dieudonne Costes, famous French flier, arrived at Casp Kastrup airdrome today after a flight from Munster, Germany.

He left Paris Saturday noon for Copenhagen, but was forced to land later that day at Munster where he awaited favorable weather before he could continue his flight.

Paris, March 5 (AP).—Dieudonne Costes, the "Lindbergh of France," is feared to be down in the North sea. He is long overdue on a six-hour flight from Paris to Copenhagen, Denmark.

Costes, who made the first nonstop westward crossing of the Atlantic from Paris to New York in 1930 with a mechanic, left Le Bourget Field alone about noon Saturday for Copenhagen.

Northern Europe was flooded with wireless calls in an effort to locate the missing aviator, but all airports reached in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany were without information.

Had Small Supply Of Fuel

Costes was in a small plane which carried a meager gasoline supply, and had no wireless and no equipment for night flying. These circumstances increased the anxiety of his friends.

He had planned to follow a straight line, which would require 180 miles over water.

When he left Le Bourget Field at 12:15 p. m. Saturday on a business trip, which had been delayed by a recent illness, Costes told friends he was "a little short of gasoline, but ought to make it just the same."

At Copenhagen searchers said Costes was unreported in any part of Denmark and it was known he planned to fly over the North sea channel to avoid passing over German territory.

The Copenhagen airport was illuminated all Saturday night. Danish authorities called on all shipping to be on watch.

Costes in the plane "Question Mark" nearly four years ago with Maurice Bellonte made the 3,610-mile hop from Paris to New York in 37 hours and 17 minutes.

Both France and America acclaimed his feat of September, 1930, as comparable to that of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whom Costes entertained at dinner in Paris last fall.

after the ceremonies. When my turn came, he clasped my hand and smiled his wonderful, kind smile, but he did not say anything . . . . Now if I can only shake hands with President Roosevelt I will be happy."

"Peppy" And Likes Things

Mrs. Frey is an extremely "peppy" 93-year-old in perfect health.

She moved to Philadelphia three years ago from Chambersburg to live with and take care of her daughter, Mrs. George McGrath, who is not very well. They live at 749 Garland street, Frankford.

Mrs. Frey loves to cook, sew, embroider, read and go to the "talkies." She is also fond of musical comedies.

In fact, she likes everything. Enjoys calling, if someone takes her in an automobile. Is a great correspondent. Usually writes two letters a day.

She likes to listen to the radio while she sews. The "Spinning Song" is her favorite. . . . "It puts me in mind of home when we raised our own sheep and wool. . . . We used to wash it down in the creek."

Young Folks Wiser

She thinks the present generation is wiser than the young people of her day. They refuse to listen to older folks, but it is quite right for them to learn by experience.

Her one message to the young people growing up and about to take their place an adult society is, "Don't gossip or meddle with other people's affairs. Just mind your own business and you will get along fine."

help to take profit out of war. But are not the men who say that war can be avoided a little too confident of moral force?"

"Your military leaders will scoff at moral force; but they are helpless without it. Slacker was the name given by an aroused moral indignation to the one who was thought to be failing in his duty. Patriot was the name which moral force gave to the man who is thought to be doing his duty. What would an army be without patriotism? And patriotism is moral force.

"Moral force is sufficient to support war; I believe it is also sufficient to support peace. The pacifists are trying to have moral force directed in right channels. They believe that mankind had a remarkable sense of justice and fitness of things. That is why lies are necessary in war. If our newspapers had told the truth about the causes of war with Germany, the moral force never could have been aroused in sufficient quantity to support war. Newspapers had to be censored to keep moral force flowing strong.

"Preparedness advocates are coming back to their old argument that preparedness will prevent war. . . . The preparedness advocates are not rushing that theory again; but, son, 'Be not deceived, God is not mocked: For whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. For that nation which soweth preparedness, shall of that preparedness reap the broken bodies of war. And that nation which soweth suspicion shall of that suspicion reap violence.'"

COLORD COUPLE WEDS

Miss Ruth M. Washington and William F. Mosley, both colored, of Gettysburg, were married, Sunday, by the Rev. James H. McMullen, of Gettysburg.

A drunk who leaned against a post and set off a false fire alarm was fined $100 in a Kansas City police court.

BLOND GODDESS

By Herbert Jensen

Chapter 48

BIRD OF RESCUE

Their story was quickly told. The setting sun found Grahame sprawled across the cockpit penciling a note that was to be sent from the nearest cable office.

Within an hour or two, he hoped, duplicates of this message would be in Myberg's office and at Spin Winslow's apartment in Hollywood, two thousand airline miles away.

Grahame gave the pilot parting instructions. "It's hurry-up that counts. This beach here is about fifteen miles long. Good landing spot for a land plane.

"We'll be here at the northern end. Spin could land one of the big Lizzies on it if he can't get anything smaller and faster at short notice. Get going now, and thanks."

Greene said importantly, "That's it. Make it snappy. You make it snappy and some day I'll give you a write-up that will make your worst enemy proud to know you."

The pilot grinned broadly. He said to Grahame:

"What's this guy do? Own a newspaper?"

Frank chuckled. "He's a press agent."

The man reached for his controls. "Oh, so that's it. Funny, he doesn't look crazy, but now I get it. So long. . . ."

The roar of the motors drowned Greene's indignant expostulation.

In the great square before the pyramid, the column of priests and guards began their slow march measured by flat drum beats vibrating through the steamy air.

The up-borne litter of the high-priest led the procession. The cage of the jaguars was immediately behind it. Side by side, and blocked in by a square of guards walked Janice and Langton.

Janice threw a beseeching glance at her companion.

"Billy," she whispered. "Is there any chance at all? Have you made any plan? . . ."

Langton's eyes were red-rimmed. Obviously his nights had brought him little sleep. His face was drawn with lines of impotence and bafflement. He answered with a voice husky with fatigue—wavering with compassion.

"Afraid not, Janice. If Frank had gotten to the coast—and it hadn't rained—there might have been a faint chance, but—"

He made a little gesture of despair.

A tenuous apathy settled upon Janice's mind. Objects about her became unsubstantial, illusory—as if she walked in a half dream. Vaguely she remembered that it was said that drowning persons reviewed their lives in one queer illuminating flash before oblivion swallowed them.

It was like that with her at this instant.

But it was not her life that paraded before the mirror of her memory, but the web of circumstances that had been spun about her since that drizzly night in Hollywood when Frank Grahame had forestalled her abduction by the mad priest of the Mayan Rain God and his emissary Don Raoul Ortega.

A vicious plan, and a daring one surely—to attempt with such an elaborate scheme the luring of a prominent and wealthy girl into hidden jungle fastnesses just so that she might enact the death role of the Daughter of Ich-Kin, the Sun God. What a sequence of horror had this priest of a dead race revived in his madness!

Hogarth, her director, dead. McGrath, the advance man, murdered as were the two camera-men. Greene and the boy Juan gone.

Frank, too, was gone—gone as surely from her life as was Ortega who had lost his life on the pyramid top by the hand of his master. In a little while she and Langton would join them all.

Janice brushed her wrist across her forehead. Her gesture could not sweep away the unreality. This was a dream; no, it was a part she was playing on some realistically appointed studio set at home.

She felt that if she listened intently she would be able to hear the hum of traffic on the streets beyond the lot—comforting sounds, sounds that would assure her of the proximity of civilization.

There was a hum undoubtedly. The noise insistently overbore the flat monotone of the altar drum. Perhaps it existed only in her mind—or else it was the crowd murmuring as bits of information were passed between its individuals.

She was aware that Langton was talking to her—rapidly, incoherently. She lifted her head; her eyes focused; from out of that queer state of unreality her mind began to function normally.

The litter supporting the high-priest had been carried halfway up the pyramid's steeply slanting steps. The jaguar cage was being slowly advanced up the slope.

She stumbled a little as her feet found the first step. The hum, she realized was tangible. It was louder—a deeply cadenced drone that was curiously familiar.

Then quite suddenly she understood Langton's shouted words.

"It's a plane! Janice, look up!"

She glanced skyward. Her glance focused on a point above the eastern jungle almost in the eye of the rising sun. She saw outspread silver wings; topaz flashed upon the fore-shortened body.

The dark lumps of the three radial motors were silhouetted sharply. It was approaching with amazing rapidity, slanting in a long power glide toward the pyramid. Above the growl of its engines she heard the voice of the ahkin screaming to his guards.

She saw the body of the column spread out. The armed guards were racing in various directions. They appeared like tiny pawns on a huge chessboard.

Some still ran; the nearer ones knelt, holding their rifles before them pointing at the approaching airplane.

The rifles began to crack sharply. Suddenly the plane was over the square. It zoomed and lifted. She saw a body hang out of one of the ports, pointing something that looked like a rifle downward, yet was bulkier than a rifle.

Lanugton cried out hoarsely, "They have a machine gun! Why don't they shoot? Don't they realize—". Then in the next breath he shouted with despairing anxiety:

"They can't! They don't dare. The ahkin knew! A fallen body in their way would wreck a landing!"

The plane made a steep bank over the western buildings. Back it roared, the wheels of the landing gear scant inches above the heads of the soldiers staggered over the square.

Langton made an inarticulate sound. "God, what flying! See, they scatter, but they close up again. They'll never give way long enough to let the plane down.

"Janice! We must do something! Make a break. See, there's an open space on the eastern side. If we could run for it . . . divert the guards . . . ship can land—"

He pivoted on his sound leg. There was a dull smack as the nearer guard of the six went down. Janice heard a scream from the ahkin drowned by a riot of snarls of the jaguars as the bearers of the cage dropped it.

She felt the hand of a guard roughly grasp her arm.

She twisted away and flung herself at a man whose upraised rifle was poised over the blond head of her companion. Again the motors roared overhead. The sound of rifle-fire grew.

The man she clung to went limp under a slash from Langton's fist. She saw a knife upraised in a brown fist.

Langton's sinewy hand darted out and twisted it away. A lunging native knocked her down to the steps. Her wildly roving glance fell upon a discarded knife a foot from her hand.

She snatched it up as Langton burst through the twisting bodies of the guards toward her.

He gasped, "We can't get away! Try to reach the ahkin and—"

His sentence ended in a moan as a clubbed rifle hit him behind the head. He pitched toward Janice. The guard who had struck him turned his eyes, crazed with excitement, toward Janice.

Slowly—it seemed almost slow-motion—he reversed his rifle. The girl knew in that instant he intended to shoot her!

She struggled gackward up the steps. She was barely conscious that she had backed against the jaguar cage. Her ears were deaf to the savage growls behind her.

The rifle was raised—still with that illusion of retarded action. The native's teeth bared, the muscles of his hand tightened over the trigger guard.

A spurt of flame darted from the muzzle.

FIRE DESTROYS TEN GARAGES

Frederick—Fire of unknown origin ate its way early Friday morning along a row of ten frame garages in Shapel alley, between Second and Third streets, burned out six garages, destroyed two automobiles and badly damaged another.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

Chambersburg—With local citizens "firing up" to overcome the rigors of the cold weather of the past two months firemen have been kept on the jump answering "silent" calls chiefly to extinguish chimney fires.

Sixty-seven telephoned alarms were received by the five fire companies of town during January and February in addition to seven general alarms. The community pumper of the Franklin company answered nine calls.

PLAYERS NEED GIANT SPIRIT

Manager Terry Insists On Newcomers Acquiring The "Blondy Ryan Spirit."

There is an engaging frankness about William Harold Terry, the field boss of the world champion Giants. He may not always consider the diplomatic import of his words, perhaps, but he says what he thinks, fairly and squarely. He does not hedge if a proposition is put to him point blank. Withal he does not take baseball with the sort of deadly seriousness that is sometimes fatal to the disposition of those connected with it.

During a fanfest, Memphis Bill was outlining his views of rival clubs, their strength and weakness in the forthcoming National league pennant race. He was not giving the Giants any the worst of it, of course, but Terry's is the sort of cockiness that is contagious. It is easy to see how and why players on Terry's club go at their jobs with a little extra enthusiasm, a little more confidence than usual in the man leading them.

Speaking of one of the players who has been added to the roster this winter, for instance, Terry said: "He will do us a lot of good if he catches the spirit of our club. Otherwise he probably won't be around long."

For want of another definition, it's known as the "Blondy Ryan spirit." The effervescent shortstop of the Giants, already famous for his use of the telegraph wires, gave his manager a laugh during an episode in which Bill's car was picked up by the Memphis police this winter. Ryan wired: "Why don't you buy your license plates?"

Not Afraid Of Klein

"The three clubs that figure to give us the most trouble again are the Cubs, the pirates and Cardinals," declared Terry. "The Cubs got the best of the winter deals by acquiring Chuck Klein, but I do not think he will go quite so well in Wrigley field as he did over in Philadelphia.

"Why? Because that Cub park is the toughest spot for left-handed pull hitters in the big leagues. The bleacher background makes it almost impossible sometimes to see the pitcher's delivery of the ball. That's why Babe Herman hasn't hit so well here and I look for Klein's batting average to do a lot of shrinking, even with the livelier ball to wallop.

"I'm not so sure, either, that the Pirates will find Red Lucas worth as much as they gave to Cincinnati for him. The redhead is a real workhorse, but the livelier ball is not going to improve his pitching effectiveness. Also, the Pirates parted with a pertty good young second baseman in Tony Piet.

"The Cardinals have some real ball players. They should get better hitting, with fellows like Davis, Medwick and Martin all taking a toe-hold, and they have at least two fine pitchers. But they are all going to take pitching lessons again from the Giants. Hubbell, Schumacher, Parmelee and Fitzsimmons will be the class of the league, with any kind of ball."

WILLIGS BEAT WINGS 53 TO 32

Locals Defeat Steelton Dribblers by Margin of One Field Goal.

The Gettysburg Fleet-Wings split even in two basketball games played over the week-end, losing to the powerful McKeesport Willigs, at McKeesport, 53-32, and winning from the St. Mary's club at Steelton, 44-42.

With Captain Lou Reilly playing [illegible] of the game with a wrenched back, the Wings fell an easy prey to the Willigs in the first of a three-game series to retermine the independent championship of Pennsylvania.

The Willigs controlled the tip-off on almost every play and used their superior height to much advantage. "Hen" Bream and Zahn flashed great ball for the locals, each accounting for ten points. The entire Willig team played a smooth game, with Siljander and Lawry stealing the honors.

Next Monday the Wings will clash with the Willigs on the local court and if successful a third game will be played in Harrisburg to determine the championship. The Wing players were unanimous in the opinion that the Willigs are probably the best team they have faced all season.

The St. Mary's club, of Steelton, put up a stiff battle against the Wings before bowing. Kitzmiller and Lynch enabled the locals to pile up a 27-14 lead at half time. The Steelton club rallied in the second half and with but four minutes to go secured a four-point lead. However, the Wings put on a spirited rally that gave them a lead just before the final whistle blew. Vergot was high scorer for the evening with four goals and ten fouls. The Wings bagged fourteen of fifteen foul heaves.

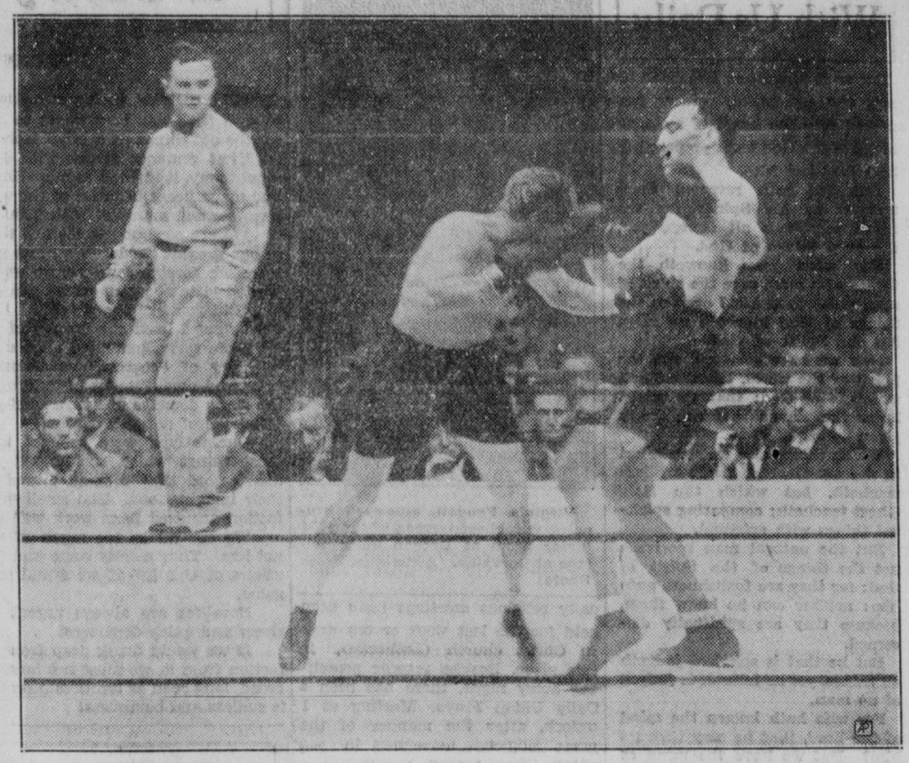
Carnera Outpoints Loughran and Retains Title



After 15 rounds of slugging, mauling and pushing, Primo Carnera outpointed Tommy Loughran and retained his heavyweight crown in their title duel at Miami, Florida. The clever Philadelphian waged a brave and determined battle but was unable to overcome the champion's advantage in weight, height and reach. This picture made during one of the early rounds shows Primo sinking back after Loughran had landed a stiff left hander.

EX-GRID STARS IN NEW FIELDS

College Gridders Turn To Wrestling, Baseball, For Livelihood.

By ALAN GOULD

College football stars, particularly in the last half dozen years, have found the avenues leading to professional sport much more numerous and lucrative than ever before. Some of them have not yet heard much about the depression.

This has been due, first, to the fact that professional football is now operating on a bigger scale, with the consequent need of fresh, conspicuous talent; and, secondly, that professional wrestling has held inducements to the strong-man type, with or without grappling experience.

As to the second of the two opportunities for profit, there need be little or no illusion. Headed by Gus Sonnenberg and his flying tackle, the gridiron giants who turned to the mat did so because their name and fame could be quickly capitalized. If they had personal color, like Sonnenberg or Joe Savoldi of Notre Dame, so much the better.

It is noteworthy, under the circumstances, to find that big Freddy Sington, the former Alabama all-America tackle and now assistant football coach under Wallace Wade at Duke, has chosen a baseball career in preference to either of the other means by which he could have capitalized his fame. And this despite the fact pro baseball has repeatedly proved the toughest of all sports for the gridiron greats to crash successfully.

"I had several chances to take up pro football," says Sington, which is by no means strange, considering his 225 pounds and a leg drive that would figure to wreck any kind of opposition. "The best came from Benny Friedman of the Brooklyn team.

"I have heard it remarked I was offered a guarantee of $40,000 for two years of professional wrestling. The fact is I was offered $7,500 for one year. Somehow that did not appeal to me, either.

"Baseball has always been the sport I liked best. I wanted to start under Johnny Dobbs and jumped at the chance to sign a contract with Atlanta. I have not regretted it so far."

Sington has yet to solve many of the mysteries of the game, including the ability to hit curveball pitching consistently. After seasoning with clubs in the southeastern and middle Atlantic league, where he belted the cover off the ball, Freddy wound up with a batting mark of .262 with Atlanta last season in the southern association. He will try out with the Albany club of the International league this year.

Still Head Man

Up to the tee-off with his latest professional rival, Ellsworth Vines, in an all-star tour, Big Bill Tilden piled up an extraordinary batting average against the best professionals in the world.

Over a three-year stretch, the old master won 321 and lost 86 matches for a percentage of .792, which is fair enough in any sport or league. Of the two European pro stars who furnished his main opposition, Tilden won 116 and lost 47 matches with Hans Nusslein of Germany, the present world champion, and showed 79 victories and 24 defeats in competition with Karel Koseluh of Czecho-Slovakia. He trounced Vincent Richards in 32 out of 33 matches.

LOCAL WOMAN IS HOME FROM TOUR

Miss Bess E. Shriver Returns From 23-Day Journey to South and Mexico.

Miss Bess E. Shriver, 140 East Middle street, has returned from a 23-day tour visiting Florida, Texas and Mexico. Twelve states outside of Pennsylvania were visited and ten states in Mexico. On the journey, Washington was the first stop, thence Asheville, North Carolina, where a motor tour was enjoyed through the mountain parks and to Chimney Rock. In Florida Miss Shriver visited Jaacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, Silver Springs and Ocala.

The itinerary was so arranged as to be in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras where the touring party spent two days. In Texas a day was spent in Houston, also at Harlingen and Brownsville in the lower Rio Grande Valley where citrus groves were visited.

The party entered Mexico on February 16, and traveled to Monterrey in the heart of the Northern Mexico mountains where two days were spent. Here the primitive customs of the Mexican Indians were observed, seeing them tilling the soil with oxen and using wooden plows.

See Bull Fight

After traveling over six hundred miles further south, Mexico City was reached and the group remained there for one week and enjoyed many motor tours to surrounding cities and points of interest such as Cholula, Puebla, Ancient Pyramids, Floating Gardens and Cuernavaca where the summer home of the late Ambassador Morrow was seen. The bull fight staged in Mexico City was of interest to the party.

On the northward journey the route was through San Antonio, Texas and Chattanooga, Tennessee, where Lookout Mountain was visited. The group traveled in a special pullman car with the Ridgeway special educational tours, O. H. Shenk Sons, directors, Lancaster.

Livestock tests have proved calves can be weaned from milk at 50 to 60 days of age without handicapping growth.

He teaches best,

MR. SCHNADER'S MISTAKE

PENNSYLVANIA'S attorney general, Schnader, speaking for modernization of the state constitution of 1874 before a Philadelphia conference on government, is quoted as declaring that the constitution "was written to fit the days of the horse and buggy, the kerosene lamp, the towpath and the weekly newspaper."

The attorney general seems to have mixed his metaphors somewhat. His comparison might go without challenge had he not referred to weekly newspapers as antiquated. When he placed them in the category of things of the distant past, he apparently did so without knowledge of the power and influence of the weekly press.

There are only 2,000 daily newspapers in the country. There are many more weeklies. And in communities served by weeklies, their influence is a great deal stronger than is that of the metropolitan dailies in their own fields in most instances. They get closer to the people; they are edited with a clear understanding of the hopes and ambitions of their subscribers. Their news is more accurate—they stick more to the truths and to facts.

Take the New Oxford Item and the East Berlin News-York Springs Comet, for instance. Each has a substantial circulation of 2,000 copies or upward weely. They fill a need in rural Adams county. Their circulation is not fictitious, is not lured by contests, insurance schemes or what have you, such as are resorted to by most metropolitan papers. They are bought and paid for because they are a necessity in the homes of their readers.

Yes, Mr. Schnader erred when he referred to weekly newspapers as bygones. A number of counties in Pennsylvania have weeklies only. And Mr. Schnader will no doubt curry favor with most of those weeklies if he attempts to realize his secret ambition to become governor of the Keystone state or feel their whip.

The bell of the German Reformed church, some time ago, received an injury which rendered it comparatively useless, and it has been re-cast at a Baltimore Foundry, and was elevated to its old position a few days ago by Mr. Turner, assisted by Mr. Halbert, his foreman, using his derrick and fixtures for the purpose. The new bell is of a very clear tone, and of increased volume in sound. The old bell was cast in London in 1822. Its present weight is 612 lbs., having lost 29 lbs. in recasting.

Religious Meetings: A series of daily religious meetings have been held for the last week or ten days in Christ church (Lutheran), in this place. Besides regular preaching every night, there has been a Daily Union Prayer Meeting at 1 o'clock, after the manner of the great religious movement in the cities. This prayer meeting has been in progress in the College since the commencement of the Winter Session, and has recently been transferred to the Church named above. The meeting closes promptly at half past one—thus giving an opporunity to business men and others to participate without sacrifice of business engagements.

Read the Bible With Us Daily

But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

Now we have received, not the Spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man.

For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

I Corinthians 2:9-16.

STAR'S WEDDED LIFE IS VAGUE

Husband of Katharine Hepburn Refuses to Discuss Romance.

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—For months I have been gazing out of my window like the doctor in "Grand Hotel," muttering "Nothing ever happens."

Why not go around and see Katharine Hepburn's husband? I thought. He may relent. This young man is affable toward all visitors until somebody asks about his romance with Katharine. He then rises and shows you the door.

On the way over whom should I see but little Miss Freckle-Nose herself, stunning in fur, smoking a cigarette. It was less than a glimpse, really, for her limousine, wedged in traffic, eddied into Fifth avenue and away just as I came abreast. A pleasant distraction, these Hepburns.

That was reward aplenty for venturing out in sub-zero weather, and it was all I got. The husband said, and civilly enough: "I mean no offense, but my marriage is my business."

"Mister, it sure is," I am compelled to admit.

Before The Hunt

On to a party for Clark Gable before he moves to to Connecticut for a week-end with the Hugh Satterlees, old friends. Enthused over two high-powered rifles just purchased, Clark aims to do some hunting when he returns to Los Angeles.

When he arrived several hundred girls in the building tiptoed by the door for a quick look-in. Seeing a shy face, Clark beckoned. "Come on in," whereupon as many as could squeeze into the office did.

One little girl crowded close and shook hands. "Gee, I'm not going to wash my hands for a month," she said.

"Come here, darling," said Gable, gathering her in as he would Joan Crawford or Helen Hayes on the screen, kissing her. Breathless with excitement, she could only stare, a radiant glow suddenly in each cheek.

Pennsylvania Girl

A pertinent reminder that New York is not necessarily a man's town would be a glimpse into any front office. Medicine, the stage, the bar, finance, advertising, commerce—all have distinguished women in their lists.

Which brings us to Katherine McNelis, A Wilkes-Barre, Pa., girl who came to New York four years ago with an idea. She is the publisher of four magazines now— all successful—with an estimated circulation of a million and a half.

Strangely enough, she chose the time of the crash to begin, setting a neat but firm foot on a street that still trembled from crumbling fortunes.

Now, You Name Some

A new pastime at after-theater gatherings is the naming of cities distinguished by some sobriquet. Could any name be more fascinating than the Crescent City—New Orleans?—which has now extended beyond the river's crescent into an "S."

On a snow white tablecloth I jotted down these: Rome, the Eternal City; Lhassa, the Forbidden City; Pittsburgh, the Smoky City; Chicago, the Windy City; St. Paul and Minneapolis, the Twin Cities; Denver, the Mile High City, and Cincinnati, the Queen City.

Today's Talk

—By George Matthew Adams—

URGENT NOVELTIES

JOHN BUCHAN, in his introduction to Mary Webb's "Gone To Earth," says that this book came to his notice at a time when "one longed for the old things as a relief from a world too full of urgent novelties."

That sentence struck with great meaning the state of the world's mind today, it seemed to me. How blind, I thought, we are to the simple and magnificent beauties of the world, and to the everlasting virtues that have clothed mankind with ideals and happiness for so very long.

We are so prone to discard the old before it has been properly fitted to our present needs. We must travel faster, build bigger buildings and see some foreign land before we have become acquainted with the inherited gifts about us which are so rich in lore.

"Did you like the play?" I hear a lady ask another. "No," she replied, "but I liked the novelty of it!"

More was commented upon concerning the "side-shows" of the great "Century of Progress," at Chicago than the really marvelous exhibitions and arrangement of buildings. It was all too big and wonderful—the many displays of man's mastery over the earth and air and the contributions of nature's depths!

Our fathers were brought up on the simple and practical—upon those things which contributed to the happiness of the heart. They didn't need the "cocktail stimulant" to foment their ideas, or to stir their imaginations. The smell of the good earth and a sense of satisfaction acquired from work well done were sufficient.

We are all in too much of a hurry. There is time! Novelties do not live. They merely come and go. We must partake of the permanent affairs of this life if we would remain a remembered part of the great game.

Novelties are always urgent in their tone—for they are early arrivers and quick departers!

If we would drink deep from life, and gain joy and a certain satisfaction from it, we must not tarry long in the way-places—but travel the broad, long road of limitless interests, led by a living love of beauty which is endless and boundless!

DILLINGER'S ESCAPE
(From The Public Ledger)

When John Dillinger, "No. 1" bank robber and bandit, was returned from Arizona, where he had been arrested, to Crown Point, Indiana, to stand trial for robbing an East Chicago (Ind.) bank and murdering a policeman, he announced that he would escape. And escape he did, after a little more than a month in the Crown Point jail.

Here he was allowed, among other privileges, to whittle as a pastime. And he whittled a wooden pistol, with which he frightened guards, locked them in cells and made his way out of the jail. Dillinger had once been delivered from a jail at Lima, Ohio, by three confederates, who killed a sheriff in the process. He was known not only as a desperate and cunning criminal but also as a man with determined criminal friends on the outside.

Yet, through the failure of the woman sheriff at Crown Point and her male warden to realize the ingenuity and recklessness of such a gunman, Dillinger was able to escape again.

It is not enough to make jails mechanically escape-proof. They must be made foolproof through the employment of jailers with shrewdness and common sense.

PROUD OF THE WEATHER
(From Williamsport Sun)

Most of us, having experienced the unpleasantness of February's cold, are inclined to feel that we are being deprived of a certain distinction due us when we are informed that the winter has been warmer than those which "grandfather used to know."

It is explained that, while the temperature has gone down to new low marks in many places in the northeastern part of the country, due to some freakish change in the routing of cold waves, which came down out of the Hudsan Bay region instead of down the MacKenzie Valley, the average temperature throughout the country has not been unusually low.

However, a man has to put up with the temperature which prevails in the very definite spot where he happens to be, and it doesn't warm him any to be told that the "average temperature" isn't so bad.

I means more to us to be informed that weather records shows February to have been Pennsylvania's coldest month in ninety-seven years of record-keeping. It gives us something of which to boast the rest of our lives, like those New Yorkers who having experienced the blizzard of 1888, feel that this places them in a class above their neighbors.

Students Learn Of Welfare Work

High school and college students of Pennsylvania, as part of their instruction in the principles of mental health, make periodic visits to the state-owned and state-aided mental hospital in advancing their studies.

These visits are included in the hopsital program of education as a heans of informing the public about mental disorders and ways of prevention and treatment.

Staff physicians at the various institutions arrange for the visits. The students are conducted through wards representative of the various types of mental illness. Work of the hospital is explained by members of the staff. The students are shown classes in occupational therapy, recreational diversions and various other modern hospital methods in the treatment of mental disease.

In semi-classroom discussion, members of the hospital staff present to the students the full scope of the mental hygiene problem, and the need for general understanding of the subject in aiding early discovery and prevention of mental diseases.

Mental hygiene clinics for physicians of the various hospital districts are another important item in the program of informing medical students and general practitioners about mental ailments and their complications. Members of the staff and visiting speakers present papers before these groups. Open discussion follows on various phases of mental diseases and their treatment.

But careful people, more and more, use it for every cough that starts. No one knows where a cough may lead. No one can tell which factor will do most. That depends on the type of cold.

Creomulsion costs a little more than lesser helps. But it means the utmost help. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it. Use it for safety's sake. (adv.)

AGENTS AID IN BAKING PUZZLE

Pure Food Agents Help To Solve Baking Problem.

Pure food agents of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture have saved the bread and cake making reputations of many home-baking experts in western Pennsylvania, a report from the state bureau of foods and chemistry indicates.

From time to time during the past year, many of these housewives had gotten most disappointing baking results without apparent cause. Investigations revealed that they were using "First Prize Baking Powder" which should have won for their baking efforts many blue ribbons at the country fairs, and bouquets from the men folks. But it seemed that most of the products baked from this magic ingredient were far from the prize-winning class.

Samples of the baking powder were taken by the state officials for analyses by their chemist. It was found that instead of a minimum of twelve per cent of available carbon dioxide (leavening powder) as required by the national and state standards, this baking powder had less than 8 per cent. It was a clear violation of the state general pure food laws and action was taken against B. M. Haschen, the selling agent in western Pennsylvania who represented the William Edwards company of Cleveland, Ohio—manufacturers of the product.

The company had previously been warned to discontinue the sale of this product in Pennsylvania, but refused to co-operate. The case was argued recently in the court of common pleas in Franklin, Pennsylvania, and the defendant found guilty by the jury.

Dr. James W. Kellog, director of the state pure foods bureau has issued instructions to his field force to keep a careful watch over the company's operations in the commonwealth and warns that any further disregard of the pure food law by the company will be dealt with drastically.

THE NEXT GENERATION

We shall leave you many problems; many tasks we couldn't do.
We shall leave a world unfinished that shall need the best of you,
And I wonder as I see you grouped in school and colleges still,
If you know the chance that waits you in the places you must fill.

The voice of opportunity is calling loud for men;
Men of wisdom, men of courage, to set right the world again;
Men of honor, men of vision now are needed, men the future's work to share;
And I wonder if you've heard it and have started to prepare.

We have blundered; we have stumbled and have somehow lost our way.
In the wreckage of our failures we are gropers all today,
But you boys who follow after face a future strewn with need
And endless opportunities to conquer and succeed.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dish-ful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN. I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time."—Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will usually overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

JUDITH LANE

By Jeanne Bowman

Chapter One

PERFECT STENOGRAPHER

Spring rain pelted at the office windows of the Bevins construction company. It sloshed on the big B, ran in a trickling stream through C-o-n and C-o-m, sheeted the sill, then shot eighteen stories to ahe asphalt pavement.

Judith Lane looked at the window even as her fingers beat a rata-ratatat-ing on her typewriter. She should have known better than to wear a brand new suit on a morning when the wind was bound to blow up a storm . . . she'd have to call a taxi . . . ratatat-ratata-ratatating . . . and her hat . . . maybe she could buy a magazine big enough to cover it while she dashed from lobby to curb . . .ratata . . . such a duck of a hat, delft blue and perky . . . so few hats these days looked good on her boyishly cut black hair . . . ratatat . . . color made her eyes look almost blue instead of grey . . . ting!

With quick fingers she whisked the sheet from the roller, slid it across the desk to her employer, Tom Bevins, switched on his desk light with one hand and with the other reached for the telephone which whirred impatiently.

"Bevins Construction company, Miss Lane, speaking. Oh yes, Jackson, I'll tell him. You'd better park the car and meet him in the lobby." She turned from the telephone. "Jackson's here with your car, Mr. Tom."

The big head with its shock of iron gray hair turned with reluctance—"Tell him to go back home. I've got three hours' work ahead of me. I'll call him when I'm ready."

"But Mr. Tom, you're scheduled to go to the Clement dinner. Mrs. Bevins called this afternoon and asked me to see that you left here by five o'clock. It's five fifteen now."

"Confound the Clements. Linen and chatter and not a thing fit for a man to eat. I'll be so almighty glad when we get into the field and I can have real grub off an oil cloth table cover . . . say, that reminds me, take this letter."

Judith reached for her note book, snapped a rubber band over the first pages, chose a finely pointed pencil and waited.

"Dale, Lampere and Morrison . . . Better address this to Lampere, make it informal. Dear . . . ah, dear Morton: I spoke to you some time ago about the Rio Diablo project.

"In case you've forgotten (strike that out). To refresh your memory, about ten years ago, a fly-by-night realty company conceived the idea of damning the Rio Diablo, a tempermental stream in southwest Texas, north and east of the Rio Grande, a particularly desolate region.

"The idea of the dam was all right, I have no doubt but what irrigation and controlled water supply will turn it into one of the leading citrus fruit sections of the world. However, after they'd talked a lot of poor suckers (strike that out) homeseekers into investing their money in the land; had built a railroad spur into the country to carry these poor . . . ah, homeseekers, there, they decamped.

"When the affair (put in another word for affair, Judy) came to my notice I made a quick trip down there. I found about a hundred of these homeseekers still there because they didn't have any place else to go. They had sold their old homes to invest in this desert land and were there grubbing a mere existence out of the soil. The spur had been abandoned and their condition was pitiable.

"I decided, after my survey, that I would build that dam, out of my own capital, if necessary and with this end in view will leave here June first with my engineers to make a complete survey of the project.

"I am going to want legal protection every step of the way, for it is possible that the original promoters, finding they may make some more money out of that country will try to horn in (you'll have to find some other word for horn in, Judy.)

"I am going to want someone from your office, either you or one of your partners, to accompany me on this trip for the purpose of searching titles, etc. My secretary, Miss Lane, will be available for any stenographic work in connection with the project, both here and in the field, and will be familiar with all details pertaining to the expedition, should you call at the office during my temporary absence.

"I will appreciate your immediate attention to this matter and wish to know at your earliest convenience, which one of you (better make that which member of your firm) will accompany the expedition—"

Judith snapped the band on her book—"Mr. Tom, you must go on home!" she entreated.

"Not 'til I sign that letter," he countered stubbornly.

With resignation the girl turned to the typewriter and sent her fingers flying over the keys. Ratatat-ratata-ratatating!

The margin bell echoed the final period and again a letter whisked across the polished surface of the desk and again the telephone whirred.

"Bevins Construction company, Miss Lane, speaking."

"Really," drawled a feminine voice. "Miss Lane, this is Miss Sanford of the Houston Tribune. Will you have dinner with me this evening?"

Judith's lips, which had curved into a smile at the sound of Clia Sanford's voice, framed a quick answer . . . "Delighted."

"Wait a minute," warned the other, "there's a joker in this invitation. The dinner is on the Tribune. I'm to interview a perfect stenographer."

"I'll enjoy that," returned Judith quickly. She'd been with Clia on other assignments. "Who is she?"

"You," answered Clia and before Judith could protest, "meet me in the lobby of the Rice at six thirty."

Judith turned from the telephone with such an expression of bewilderment that Bevins, looking up from the letter he had just signed, laughed.

"What's wrong, Judy?"

"Nothing in particular," she faltered, "only Clia Sanford said she was going to interviey a perfect stenographer this evening and that I was—" she paused. Tom Bevins, "Big Tom," as his men affectionately called him, had flushed to the roots of his hair.

"I let you in for that," he confessed. "A discusison of stenographers came up at the engineers luncheon today. Kline of the Amalgamated said there was no such a thing as a perfect stenographer, because such a person would have to have the brains of an Einstein, the patience of a Job and the endurance of a Robot.

"Judith," there was small-boy defiance in his voice, "I not only admitted you possessed these qualities, I bragged about it. Carlson of the Tribune sat across the table from us and he must have listened in."

"And to think you're noted internationally for your accuracy," chided Judith. "What would happen if you exaggerated on a bridge specification like that? I should ask for a raise on the strength of what you've said, but you're already giving me more than I'm worth, so please, Big Tom, do go on home before Mrs. Bevins gets after me."

"Oh all right." He arose, walked slowly to his locker, pulled a slouch hat over his hair at a defiant angle and ambled out, slamming the door behind him.

The moon-faced clock on the tower of the Tribune leered at Judith. Big Tom would be late and Mrs. Bevins would nag at him. Poor, Big Tom.

It would be a relief to get him into the field again where he could relax. Mrs. Bevins didn't seem to realize that a man couldn't work at white heat, all day then dine and play cards all night. Of course she was considerably younger. She admitted being forty-two; Big Tom was past sixty.

Not that this was any of her business, Judith reminded Judith. She was only his stenographer . . . perfect stenographer, dinned the memory of Clia's voice. She laughed. To think that in this city of three hundred thousand, with its usual ratio of stenographers, she should have been called the perfect one.

Five years ago she would have classified a stenographer as some sort of an unskilled business domestic. She was in college then, intent upon fitting herself to become a civil engineer and her fathers partner. She had all of the practical education necessary, having traveled with him since her mother's death, when she was twelve, but had wanted to perfect her technical training.

She had foregone the pleasure of a South American trip for this purpose and one year before her course was completd, Emil Lane succumbed to a slow tropical fever which had been robbing him of both life and savings.

Tom Bevins was in Austins when the dean broke the news to Judith. When he learned of the passing of his friend and early partner, he hurried to the girl and after her grief had subsided, helped her readjust her life. He admired her independent attitude and when she refused financial help, suggested she use the meager life insurance as tuition at a business college where she could be speedily supplied with stenographic training which would enable her to care for herself.

Equipped with a diploma and determination, she progressed from position to position until Big Tom's secretary married and she was called to take her place.

Tomorrow, a man comes into Judith's life.

HUGE GERMAN LINER HITS SLEEPING WHALE

New York, March 5 (AP)—Captain Otto Prehn brought the liner Bremen into port Friday with a story of having struck a sleeping whale Tuesday night off the Grand Banks.

It must have been a mighty big whale, the captain said, for the ship to quiver as it did. He hove to, he added, but found nothing.

"They sleep just like humans," he explained. "Every night they turn in under a blanket of water and it was then we struck him. It must have weighed about 100 tons."

The Bremen didn't sight any sea serpeants on the voyage, he said.

ESTATE OF CUSTER WIDOW INCLUDES LEE TRUCE FLAG

More Than $100,000 Left by Wife of Indian Fighter

New York, March 5—An old piece of white towel, stamped "This towel was the first flag of truce sent in by the confederate forces on the day General Lee surrendered," was among the effects of the widow of General George Armstrong Custer, which was appraised last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon Custer, widow of the Indian fighter and hero of Custer's last stand, left an estate appraised at $101,492 when she died last April 4, including such relics as a linen handkerchief said to have been used as a flag of truce at Appomattox.

The toweling and the handkerchief were bequeathed to the government and other momentoes of General Custer's including his sword and scabbard, were left to the Smithsonian institution. The balance of the estate goes to Agnes Bates Willington, of Bronxville, New York, and May Custer Elmer, of Brooklyn, New York.

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO END FEDERAL GASOLINE TAX

Backing Is Sought for Repeal Measure in Senate

Harrisburg, March 5—Repeal by congress of the 1-cent federal tax on gasoline was urged Saturday by the Pennsylvania motor federation in a statement calling on motor clubs to support a bill introduced in the senate by Arthur Clapper, of Kansas, which would eliminate this tax.

This 1-cent per gallon levy, according to the federation, costs motorists approximately $175,000,000 annually, or an average of nearly $7 a car.

Reports received here from headquarters of the American automobile association at Washington indicate sentiment in favor of eliminating the federal tax is growing in congress and a number of leaders in the house and senate have declared themselves to be favorable to its repeal.

SCHOOL HEADS TO BE ELECTED

County And District Superintendents Will Take Office In July.

Election of county and district school superintendents in Pennsylvania takes place Tuesday, April 10 according to the Pennsylvania school law, Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, announced. On that day election of district superintendents will be held by boards of school directors in each district of the second class, and in many districts of the third class. County conventions of fourth class school directors will be held to elect county superintendents. These conventions are to be held at the county seats. Participants are directors of districts coming under the supervision of the county superintendent.

Sixty-six county superintendents and 178 district superintendents will be elected on the second Tuesday in April. The term of office is four years beginning the first Monday in July, 1934.

Assistants Appointed

In addition to these elections, appointments to the office of assistant county superintendent will be made. Superintendents nominated their assistants. Those in second and third class districts are elected by the board of directors of the district. Assistant county superintendents are chosen by the five officers of the county school directors' association.

In order to stand for election to these offices a new candidate must be a graduate of an approved college or university, have six years of successful teaching experience in the public schools, at least three of which must have been in an administrative or supervisory capacity, and must have completed graduate courses in education administration at an approved university. A special program for the preparation of candidates for these positions has been developed in each of the larger universities of the commonwealth. Several hundred young men have been preparing themselves for advancement along these lines.

French Cops Nab Stavisky's Widow

Paris, March 5 (AP).—The mysterious and beautiful widow of Serge Stavisky was arrested by secret service police Friday in connection with the Stavisky pawnshop scandal that cost investors losses of $40,000,000 and led to bloody street riots.

The detention of Mme. Arlette Simon Stavisky followed the dramatic recovery of incriminating stubs for many millions of francs in her husband's checkbook through a secret service agent who had been suspended on charges of neglect of duty in connection with the investigation.

In all, eighteen persons, including two members of the chamber of deputies, now face charges as an outgrowth of the affair. New arrests were said to be imminent, with twelve already in custody, as Minister of Justice Cheron continued to wrench the secrets of the scandal from obscurity.

Gas Sales Drop 500,000 in February

Gasoline sales in Pennsylvania decreased 500,000 gallons last month, probably because of the severity of the weather. Despite the decrease, the total gasoline consumption for the last nine months was 832,517,443 gallons as compared with 811,591,173 gallons in the nine months ending May 31, 1933.

Tax collections in the past nine months totaled $24,117,788 as compared with the preceding nine months, when gas taxes totaled $24,117,687.

KANSAS CITY MANAGER GETS EXTORTION THREAT

Kansas City, Mo., March 5—City Manager H. F. McElroy, whose daughter, Mary, was kidnaped last summer for a $30,000 ransom, disclosed Friday that he received a note last Tuesday demanding $25,000 with death as alternative.

"I regarded the note the work of a crank," and gave it no serious consideration," the city manager said. "I didn't notify the police."

He denied that he would take any special precautions or that he would allow the threat to interrupt his usual business routine.

One of the gang who kidnaped his daughter, Mary, has been sentenced to death, another to life imprisonment and a third to life imprisonment. One suspect is still a fugitive.

Magnolia, Ark., March 5 (AP).—The curtain did not go up on the American Legions musical comedy show Friday night, because the piano fell on the accompanist, her husband fainted twice and the performance was postponed.

It happened as the audience sat tense, waiting. Mrs. Lester Higginbotham sat down to play when the piano fell, breaking her right leg above the knee. The excitement was too much for her husband and he had to be revived twice.

Roast Beef Is Favored By Notables

When in doubt about the menu on a railroad dining car, presidents, princes and potentates fall back on roast beef, according to Francis A. West, thirty-seven years a waiter on the Pennsylvania railroad, thirty-three of them spent on the Congressional limited. West, a negro, was retired last week by the railroad company, having reached the age of 70.

"Yes, sir," he said, "seems like President McKinley, President Teddy Roosevelt, President Taft, President Wilson, President Harding, President Coolidge and our present president always took roast beef when they sort of had their doubts."

West had served them all—Franklin D. Roosevelt, when he was assistant secretary of the navy, but not since last March 4 He added as an afterthought, "and the big men from abroad did the same thing. I served Marshal Foch when he went to Washington. He took roast beef."

When a youth West served with the Ninth United States Cavalry, which was sent to Colorado to quell the Indians. He entered the employ of the Pennsylvania April 1, 1897 and was assigned to the one-famous Nellie Blye flier, a train which ran between Jersey City and Chicago.

In West's mind lingers the memory of a trip made by a Chinese prince:

"That gentleman had a whole carload of his private food hitched onto the train. He had a valet who spooned up the food and put it in the prince's mouth. All the prince had to do was chew and swallow it."

West said that the largest tip he ever received was given to him about thirty years ago by a woman whom he remembers only as "Mrs. Williams." She was seated at a table with her husband and Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould. The check was $8—and the meal included roast beef. Mrs. Williams handed West a $20 bill and told him to keep the change.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

USE BUCHU AND GIN

Make This 25c Test

It is as valuable to the bladder as castor oil to the bowels. Flushes out impurities and excess acids which cause the irritation resulting in getting up nights, burning, frequent desire, leg pains and backache. On account of the alcohol in gin use juniper oil from which gin is made. Ask for Bukets, the bladder laxative also containing buchu leaves, etc. After four days, if not pleased your druggist will return your 25c. You are bound to sleep better after this flushing. CONVICT 19 FOR FOOD ORDER FRAUDS

Other prosecutions are pending, the announcement said. Sentences ranged from three years probation to eighteen months to three years in the penitentiary.

WAGE CAMPAIGN FOR BACK TAX

Drive In 1933 Netted $100,000 In Old Taxes; To Continue Fight.

Age does not dim the memory of records of the department of revenue which last year collected $3,910,612 of delinquent taxes.

In its constant drive to eliminate overdue accounts, the department during 1933 collected nearly $100,000 which had been on the books for five years or more. The actual total collected for 1928 and prior years was $98,428.

The extent and efficiency of the attack on delinquent taxes is shown by the collection of accounts which have remained unpaid as long as twenty-eight years. One item of $1.11, due in 1905, was included among those which went to make up the total of nearly $4,000,000 which the department obtained from delinquent accounts.

While the bulk of the delinquent tax collections were those from the year of 1932, these figures show the manner in which the department maintains its campaign to bring into the treasury revenue to which the commonwealth was entitled in years gone by:

Year Due	Amount
1928	$50,450.58
1927	13,093.76
1926	3,760.68
1925	24,770.72
1924	2,181.36
1923	1,985.92
1922	111.53

1915	125.00
1914	254.85

DILLINGER BREAKS FROM 'ESCAPE-PROOF' JAIL

Making good his boast that he could escape any jail, John Dillinger, notorious badman, broke out of the "escape-proof" Lake county jail at Crown Point, Ind. Using a wooden pistol which he had carved in spare moments, he disarmed a guard, stole machine guns from the armory and made a successful break in an auto. Shown above is the jail with one of the numerous armed guard details thrown about it especially to prevent his escape. (Associated Press Photo)

Airplane Wins Unique Battle With Shark High Above Sea

Bewildered Sea Killer Dangles from Craft after Spirited Fight; Motion Pictures Shown Here and Miami Anglers Vouch for "Tallest'" Fish Story.

PATRONS of the Majestic theatre were given a thrill the other day when the "news reel" gave a thrilling version of an incident which is certain to provide a yarn for an evening when the boys are gathered around the campfire, a trout crackling in the pan, smoking their pipes and telling tall tales.

According to news dispatches from Miami, Florida, it's a true fish story, but it probably can beat most of the tall stories your companions will tell.

A group of Miami sportsmen, armed with a heavy hook, 2,000 feet of strong line, thick gloves and bait, took off in a blimp to soar over the Gulf Stream and fish for shark.

A school of shark was sighted. The pilot eased the ship down to 1,000 feet, high enough to keep from frightening the fish.

The line and hook were heaved overboard. Down like a plummet they went to strike the water with a splash. Sharks darted in every direction, but the smell of the bait got the better of their judgment and one by one, they drifted back.

One struck at the bait and missed. Right behind him came another big shark. Others swished about, first shyly and then with more courage.

One struck like lightning, grabbed the bait and sounded. The line played out, shining, as the shark dived toward the bottom. Finally the line was made fast. The shark came up and lunged into the air. The blimp, suddenly lightened, also shot upwards.

When the shark hit the end of the slack the little blimp car shook. Far below the fish shook from side to side trying frantically to dislodge the hook from his mouth.

The pilot turned the nose of the ship straight up and gave her the full power of two engines. For a few minutes it was a draw. One fisherman stood ready, knife in hand, to cut the line in the event the blimp couldn't take the load.

Slowly the shark gave way to superior power and came to the surface. He dangled in the air. Hoisting him up to within a few feet of the ship, fishermen looked down into his mouth, studded with vicious teeth, and into his eyes, fired with the light of a fighter, subdued and bewildered by the sudden turn of events, but still ready to battle to his last breath.

Freely his tail swung from side to side, as, in his last minutes, he attempted to shake himself loose from the monster above him.

GETS NEW TEETH AT 73

Canton, March 5 (AP).—Tang Shao-yi, veteran Chinese statesman and life-long friend of ex-President Hoover, is growing a new set of teeth at the age of 73. For years Mr. Tang has worn false teeth and is now inconvenienced because three new teeth on each side of the upper jaw have grown so long that he can no longer use his false set.

Chinese believe that to grow new teeth in old age is a promise of long life.

Lost Mine Cause Of Gold Rush

Edmonton, Alta.—Three hundred miles north of Fort Simpson, in the wild, little known Nanni country, a "little Yukon" is in progress.

Scores of the prospectors are speeding to where a rich stake has been reported.

The present rush comes as a climax to twenty-eight years of searching for teh lost mine of the burdered McLeod brothers, and a report some time ago that the mine had been found now has been confirmed.

J. J. Byrne, president of the Great Bear mines, has revealed that prospectors have located the original claim on McLeod creek, and both fine and coarse gold has been found in substantial quantities.

A court action in San Mateo, California, revealed the Buri Buri rancho, which included the entire San Francisco peninsula in Spanish California days, had dwindled to a single acre.

MISSOURI SOW RAISES 37 PIGS IN ONE YEAR

Springfield, Mo., March 5 (AP).—The administration's corn-hog reduction campaign apparently doesn't mean a thing to a sow owned by Rome Owens, farmer, near Springfield.

The animal raised thirty-seven pigs during the year, the third litter arriving a little less than twelve months after the first one. One litter consisted of thirteen pigs and the other two twelve each. All were raised and marketed.

Voting Machines Will Total 5,000

By the time of the next primary election, May 15, there will be more than 5,000 voting machines in Pennsylvania, although only about 3,500 of them may be in condition to use.

One type of machine, the Automatic, will be in use in at least twenty-two counties, and there will be approximately 3,500 of them on hand by that time. This list includes Philadelphia county with 1,540, where 800 new machines will be placed in operation for the first time in May.

Allegheny county with its 1,100 American type machines is experiencing difficulty in overcoming deficiencies that have appeared in them, but every effort is being made to put them in proper condition for use. In Schuylkill county where 245 if the same type have been delivered and in Northumberland where the number seventy their use is held up by litigation.

Ten counties have adopted the machines on a county-wide basis and various communities in sixteen other counties have also adopted them. More than 65 per cent of the voting population of the state resides in districts that have decided to employ the mechanical method of voting.

Male, Weaker Sex, Mayo Data Show; Women More Resistant to Diseases

Rochester, Minn., March 5—Facts and statics on file at the Mayo clinic at Rochester show that the male is the weaker sex.

Dr. William J. Mayo learned years ago that under some circumstances and in some diseases the male of the species was less resistant than the female.

Using this information as a basis, Dr. E. V. Allen and associates of the clinic studied 300,000 cases by checking the findings.

"Many will take exception to this statement," Doctor Allen said. "They will say that football players, track men, wrestlers and those who excel in feats of strength and endurance are almost uniformly males. But physical prowess is but the outward habiliment of physical superiority. A quality much better reflected is ability to withstand disease."

The fact is, Doctor Allen said, that men are more frequently victims of diseases of the digestive tract, the lungs, kidneys and brain, and functional diseases than are women.

He admits that women may be sick more often than men but says their ailments are of lesser degree. Women are most commonly affected with nervous disorders and diseases and in cases of varicose veins and heart ailments.

Among reasons for the "inferiority" of men, Doctor Allen lists overwork, alcoholism, "tobacco heart," industrial hazards and irregular habits of sleeping and eating.

Virtually every community, he says, shows more widows than widowers.

The report shows that during the influenza epidemic several years ago more women than men were affected, but that the disease caused more male fatalities than female.

In the matter of infant mortality Doctor Allen says federal census figures for 1929 reveal that 129 males died to every 100 females under 1 year of age and that 122 male deaths occurred for every 100 females among children five years old.

On the other hand, figures show that from 104 to 106 males are born to every 100 females in the United States. Yet there are more women than men living in the nation now.

BRAZILIANS CLAIM LEAD IN MELTING POT CAPACITY

Rio De Janeiro (AP)—The federal statistics bureau estimates that Brazil tops all other nations in potential population capacity.

The statisticians figure that this republic can support 900,000,000 people on its own resources. There are 44,000,000 in the country now.

The bureau gives the United States a capacity of 500,000,000; China, 475,000,000; India 400,000,000; Russia 220,000,000 and Canada and Argentina 150,000,000 each.

Isle of Nordstrand (AP)—Residents of this tiny Scandinavin island are proud of their oldest citizen, Mrs. Naemi Nielsn, who at 92, has become a great-great-grandmother. She already had 42 great-grandchildren.

ONE-THIRD OF STUDENTS AT BRYN MAWR AIDED

Scholarships or Loans Provided From Various Funds

One out of three students at Bryn Mawr college receives scholarship or loan aid, according to a report by Miss Elizabeth Maguire, chairman of the school's scholarship and loan fund.

This year $53,410 was granted in undergraduate scholarships and loans, $600 less than last year's distribution. Loans for the 1933-34 school year amounted to $4110 as compared with $5443.50 during 1930.

AUSTRIA NABS 30 HITLERITES

Group Cheers German Dictator after Austrian Chancellor Speaks.

Villach, Austria, March 5 (AP).—Police were required to restore order Sunday when a crowd of Austrian nazzis shouted "Heil, Hitler!" and hoisted swastika banners at the conclusion of an address by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss. Thirty of the nazzis were jailed.

The little chancellor, bitter foe of naziism, had just assured a mass-meeting that a new constitution would replace the recently discarded one of the republic within a week.

It will be based, Dollfuss said, on the Pope's encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno" and will be maintained inviolate against any efforts of "those who follow false prophets."

Denies Any Desire For Revenge

Despite recent events, Dollfuss said, his government is not filled with a desire for revenge, but stretched out "a friendly hand" to everyone.

"Christian love must unite all sections of our populace," the leader asserted. "Our youth must be trained in the Christian spirit, but at the same time every man must be guaranteed freedom of his conscience."

His address came on the first anniversary of the abolishment of the Austrian parliament, which marked the beginning of Dollfuss' rigid rule.

Points To Changes In Past Year

The premier in his fight against socialists and nazis, is governing by decree, having shelved the constitution of the republic. Referring to changes which have taken place since the death of parliament a year ago, Dollfuss said:

"We have all undergone a spiritual transformation in the last year. To our joy we have discovered a conception of Austria which again makes it our homeland.

"We wear again as soldiers and officers the old uniform to show we are true Austrians, with no reason to be ashamed of our past. We have also had to clear away much of the filth and trash of demagoguery."

ASKS MOTORIST OBSERVE SIGNS

Emphasize Need For Auto Drivers To Halt At Grade Crossings.

Urging more respect for the old "Stop, Look and Listen" sign at grade crossings, the governor's committee on street and highway safety today stressed the indisputable fact that "accidents involving railroad trains and automobiles rarely kill or injure anyone on the train."

"It is usually the people in the automobile who suffer," the committee said. "Much as the engineer might like to do it, he can't possibly give the motorist a 'break' in view of the teriffic momentum and weight of the train. A train running forty miles an hour goes fifty-nine feet in one second and cannot be stopped in less than a quarter of a mile. An automobile going thrity miles an hour can be stopped in fifty-six feet.

"Up to the moment of collision the motorist has all advantages. Then the odds swing to the train which, in a race to the crossing, wins all ties.

"All crossings, whether guarded or not, require the careful attention of the motorist. Crossing bells and flashing lights are sometimes out of order. Watchmen or gate operators may be off duty.

"If your view is obstructed, come to a full stop before crossing. Then, in order to prevent stalling your motor on the tracks, take the crossing in second or low gear. Where a full stop clearly does not seem necessary, slow down to a reasonable speed at a point 50 or 100 feet from the crossing so you can stop if it becomes necessary."

Professional Gap In Duce's State

Rome (AP)—The difficulties of either forming or foreseeing any such thing as syndicates of clients to act under Mussolini's newly overhauled corporative state is preoccupying some of Italy's outstanding professional men and artists.

These men have been formed in a syndicate along with all other blackshirt representatives of the nation's economic life. Like all others, this syndicate is granted the right to suggest legislation governing its own problems and necessities.

Seenator Voicies Woes

All this suggested legislation will be passed on by the council of corporations, with Il Duce as final judge.

The syndicate of professionals and artists has about 100,000 members. Senator Cogliolo described their plight in regard to a public which has yet to show any syndicated purchasing trend as "unhappy."

Registration for the 1934 municipal election in Kansas City set a new high mark, estimates placing the list at 220,000 names.

South Carolina's New Poet Laureate Mercersburg Teacher for 30 Years

Dr. Archibald Rutledge, for thirty years a teacher of English at the Mercersburg academy, Mercersburg, has been elected poet laureate of his native state of South Carolina.

Two signers of the declaration of independence, Edward Rutledge and John Rutledge, are in his ancestral line. He owns the original estate, which has been in the possession of his family 200 years, named Hampton, on the Santee peninsula of South Carolina.

The house is one of the earliest of the notable colonial mansions, a noble speciment of Georgian architecture. The house has entertained Washington, General Marion and other distinguished figures in colonial life.

For many years Doctor Rutledge has had a distinguished position in American letters, being recognized as an authority on natural history and a most felicitous interpreter of its beauty and romance. He was recently awarded the John Burroughs prize for the best nature writing of the year, a prize which had formerly been awarded to Ernest Seton Thompson, William Beebe and others.

Many of the scenes of his stories of natural history are in the Santee peninsula forest and along the shoreline. He has written a great deal also about the Tuscarora mountain district, in the immediate neighborhood of Mercersburg. He has published nearly a score of volumes, including "Plantation Game Trails," "Days Off In Dixie," "Children of Swamp and Wood," "Peace in the Heart," "Old Plantation Days," "Tom and I," "Bolla and Other Dogs," "Heart of the South," "The Banners of the "Coast," "Collected Poems," "Life's Extras," "The Flower of Hope," "South of Richmond.'

When the sesqui-centennial of the battle of Kings mountain was celebrated Doctor Rutledge was asked to be poet of the occasion, President Hoover being the orator. For that occasion he read "The Shrine of the Mountain Men," the theme of which is contained in the single line, "Where there's a sacrifice, there is a shrine."

Movies Tell Of Forestry Work

Educational motion pictures on forestry, wild life and conservation of the state's natural resources are being shown nightly to members of the Civilian Conservations corps located in the ninety-two camps in state forests and on state game lands, Deputy Secretary John W. Keller, of the department of forests and waters, recently reported.

Then sound motion picture projectors, complete with electrical generators for operating them, have been made available to the 18,000 emergency forest workers in these camps under an arrangement whereby each ten camps have the use of one machine. Operators of the equipment have been selected from among the enrolled membeers of th C. C. C. corps.

The pictures released from the Harrisburg office of the department of forests and waters for the first half of February pertain to forestry subjects such as tree planting, fire extinction and lumbering.

Later releases will be on subjects of scientific and educational value to tie in with the classes of instruction now scheduled for the camps under the supervision of educational advisors, one of wnom will be attached to each six camps.

PROBE BUYING OF ARMY SHIPS

$24,000,000 Worth of Planes Purchased during Three And One-Half Years.

Washington, March 5 (AP).—Figures showing that the war deprtment spent $24,000,000 on airplanes in the last three and a half years of the Hoover administration and $5,000,000 in the last three days put a new puzzler up to congressional investigators of army expenditures.

These figures were presented to the military affairs committee, which has been ordered by the house to investigate reported irregularities in the spending of national defense money.

Blame Not Placed

Committee members, chary of charges that they were conducting a partisan investigation for political advantage, were quick to explain that they had no intention to trying to put all the blame for the "$5,000,000 rush orders" on republican officeholders. As one member said:

"It must be remembered that the regular officers of the army have had considerable influence on the civilian officials charged with responsibility for the contracts. Last March they were not certain as to what attitude the new president, his secretary of war and their assistants would take toward aviation."

Detailed statements on all war department contracts for airplanes, parts and equipment since 1926 have been submitted to the committee. These show, in the three and one-half years ended last March 4, contracts totaling $24,000,000.

Three Days Of Action

But from mid-December to March 4 around $10,00,000, or nearly half the total, was contracted. And on March 1, 2 and 3 the total commitments were, roughly, $5,000,000.

For nearly a month the military affairs subcommittee headed by Representative Rogers (Dem., N. H.) has been attempting to determine who was responsible for the army's system of buying airplanes on "negotiated" instead of "competitive" contracts.

Members who helped draft the 1926 aircraft defense act say it was their intention to insure competition for quantity purchases. Bu they have found that not once since 1926 were any airplane contracts open to competition.

ment, the six cents equipment maintenance allowance.

Frank M. Patterson, of York, vice president of the local tri-county association, presided at the meeting in the absence of C. Earl Hollinger, Greencastle, president. Mr. Patterson, a rural carrier at the York postoffice, is a native of Gettysburg.

Beside Congressman Haines, the other principal speaker at the meeting was Max B. Lightner, of Duncannon, secretary of the state rural carriers' association. Others who spoke were George W. Hafer, of Chambersburg, past president of the state rural carriers' association; L. B. Fink, postmaster of Littlestown; O. A. Nary, postmaster at Biglerville; John E. Anstine, postmaster at Stewartstown, and W. A. Sinner, secretary of the tri-county association.

The association extended a rising vote of thanks to Postmaster C. A. Williams, of Gettysburg, for furnishing the meeting room for the meeting.

Trappers were paid $115,000 for 200,000 pelts sold to fur dealers in Richmond, Kentucky, last year.

ACHIEVES NEW AIRCRAFT DESIGN

With both its motors mounted on their sides to reduce head resistance, this twin-motored monoplane is the latest creation of Allan H. Lockheed, aircraft designer. The method of mounting the motors is said to reduce the head resistance by half of that created by a radial motor installation. Frank Clark, test pilot, is shown with the plane at the Alhambra, Cal., airport. (Associated Press Photo)

Captain James M. MacDonnell commands M. P. No. 2 and Captain J. Moran commands M. P. 1. Captain Moran came here from the western part of the state to relieve Lieutenant Wilson who was returned to duty with the R. O. T. C. at Lehigh university.

R. J. FUNKHOUSER NAMED IN SUIT

Divorce Action is Reported to Have Been Started by Wife in Reno.

Mrs. Ruth Goodwin Funkhouser, wife of Raymond J. Funkhouser, of Winchester and New York, and well known in Gettysburg, until recently general manager of a large manufacturing establishment, has brought divorce action at Reno, Nevada, according to word reaching friends of the couple in Winchester. Mrs. Funkhouser resided until recently at Deal, New Jersey. Mr. Funkhouser, who has custody of their two minor daughters, has established a residence at Rye, New York.

The Funkhousers were involved in litigation some months ago in New Jersey, in which Mrs. Funkhouser sued for separate maintenance, after the had given up lease on a large residence in a fashionable section in Winchester. She claimed he had a large income. It was brought out during testimony before a court commissioner that Mrs. Funkhouser, native of Texas, had been married five times and twice to the same man.

Mrs. Funkhouser came to Winchester several years ago with her husband from Hagerstown, and became popular in fashionable society, entertaining extensively and on an elaborate scale. Her husband, member of an old and prominent Virginia and Maryland family, was some years ago active in the work of the Lord's Day Alliance and Anti-Saloon League in Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. Funkhouser were married January 20, 1930, at Leesburg, Virginia. She bases her suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Miss Lucile Taylor of Boone county, Kentucky, thinks she set some sort of record last year when she canned 506 quarts of home-grown friuts and vegetables.

Concerning the Work of the Y. W. C. A. And Campaign for Fund to Carry on

By MISS EDNA ALBERT

When any organization which serves the community initiates a drive for funds in the neighborhood thus served, many people are sure to ask what is done with the money, and rightly so. Every contribution is an investment, and the investors have the right, and it is their duty, to keep an intelligent and understanding eye upon the spending of their money. This is particularly true in the case of an organization which sets out directly to serve the youth of the community, as the Young Women's Christian Association of Gettysburg does. There, if anywhere, one should demand rich returns in terms of community soundness and health. And if the income of such an organization is not being expended in the way that best serves its purpose, those who support it should know the reason why. It is in the hope of answering a very few questions that have ing asked today, that this article is been asked in the past, and are bewritten.

Covers County

As is well known the YWCA functions throughout Adams county, so persons throughout the county should count it an opportunity for real service to many girls and women, when they are asked to give toward the support of the association. Beginning on Monday, this opportunity will be given. The association has set $1800.00 as the goal for the drive. That no more is required to carry on the work is due to the fact that the interest on the endowment, with the terms of which everyone is familiar, amounts this year approximately to $1950. With investments playing tricks upon most of the members of the community, this sum cannot be absolutely decided upon at the beginning of the year, but this is the amount reasonably to be expected. The amount determined upon as the goadl is lessened by the fact that house receipts and service receipts total $550. The full amount of the budget is $4300. The matter of these earn gni assexwnowurohat of these earnings was explained in a former article dealing with association work, so it will be necessary only to point out that the use of the house in the lodging of transients, and for meetings of various organizations that make voluntary gifts to cover certain items of expense with their use of the building accounts for the sum of $1,50,1 and $400 is earned by food service.

Careful Planning

That this item bulks so large in the account is due to most careful planning, the absolute elimination of waste, gifts of food stuffs by members and friends, and voluntary service on the part of clubs and committees connected with the association. The criticism that the Y. W. C. A. does nothing but eat, and finances the various clubs suppers from its treasury is met with the simple statement that all such food service is paid for by the individual members of such clubs, the proceeds being turned back into the service of the organization. This will be clearer when it is known that an unexpected expense of more than $200 for work upon the furnace during 1933 was met by the association without exceeding the budget, because various clubs connected with the "Y" and certain members underwrote the project so that no budgeted funds were diverted for that purpose.

House salaries amount of $985. This inlcudes the salary of the efficient house secretary, Mrs. Hettie Linn, janitor service and other small service expenses. House maintenance, upkeep and insurance amount to $575. None of the hundreds of women and girls who are made welcome in the "Y" throughout the year will question the justness of these apportionments. Interest upon the balance of the debt incurred by enlarging the house several years ago amounts to $130, including the fixed amount of $50 applied yearly to reduce the principal. $205 covers the annual contribution to the national board of the Y. W. C. A., an dattendance upon conferences throughout the year, but does not in any sense pay for the very real service of the national board to the association, nor for the contribution of members attending such conferences to the creative living of the group. Office supplies, departmental expenses and an exceedingly small contingent fund account for a little over $225. There are left $225 for automobile expense, and administrative salaries, $1,900.

The car mileage recorded for the period March, 1933, to March 1, 1934, was 3,394. This record covers only ten months, as the general secretary has no work for the association in the two summer months. 395 club meetings in the county during that period shows the reason for the mileage, or a part of it. As each club meeting means anywhere from one to three committee meetings, for preparatory, at many of which the general secretary is present, the amount of work that the association requires of its secretary assumes proportions that surprise anybody not intimate with the work of the organization and many who are.

Intimate association with three general secretaries in the six or seven years since the Y began to function in the county could not lessen the astonishment of most of us that one person could accomplish what each of these high-powered women in turn has accomplished. It is not done without cost. Yet, there are those who say that too much is spent on the item of salaries.

The $1,900 of our budget includes not only the general secretary's salary but all that is expended for office assistants as well. The secretary is supposed to have set hours, but her hours often begin before nine in the morning and run to eleven or twelve at night. She must travel from one corner of the county to the other at night, usually alone, in good weather or bad, because some little group of girls or older women in a more or less remote corner of the county look to her for advice and inspiration. Almost anybody finds it a man-size job to supply one person with courage and wisdom to face life squarely and joyously, and that one residing within his own skin. We of the Y confidently look to our general secretaries for that sort of thing as well as a dozen other services which her training and equipment allow her to give. That the Y in Gettysburg meets so many needs of girls and women and meets them well is due to the fact that the board has been far-sighted enough to pay for the high type woman demanded for the job. And only the loyal cooperation of one fine-spirited woman after another in this position has made possible the record of this year, summarized a short time ago in the paper.

One other question is often asked: Why should I give? I have no daughters. The answer to this is easy, if such a questioner has sons. It ought to be easy in any case. Any one of the older generations must hold himself partly responsible for the world in which youth finds itself today. It is not altogether a pretty world. It is not altogether a safe world for young people. We, therefore, owe it to the boys and girls of our county, heartily to support any organization that works for the social well-being of the community, and if the Y. W. C. A. is not doing this, there is no agency in the county that is doing it. It works hand in hand with the church and should be backed up to the limit of our ability.

Every dance and college social function at Iowa State college has out of the "red" last year.

PUTTING A DAMPER ON OLD SOL

It seems incredible to winter-groggy northerners that somewhere in the country the sun gets too hot. It does, though, and when "Marty" Dillard of Indianapolis collects enough sunbeams at Miami Beach, Fla., she dons this ample hat. It has gay colored stripes and is a type that is very popular with beach sitters this season. (Associated Press Photo)

"There's the doorbell again"

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price.

And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Everyday, through the advertising columns of The Gettysburg Times, the merchants of Gettysburg and Adams county come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world. You learn through The Gettysburg Times ads the dependable people with whom you can deal.

They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are always surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm, or a service man who advertises and stands squarely behind his workmanship.

It always pays best in every respect to patronize your home community people who advertise regularly.
